WE NOMINATE

Colin Stephenson Pittendrigh, an extremely perceptive man of science with interests ranging from the biological exploration of the planet Mars to mundane municipal affairs, who in the months ahead will be absorbing new responsibilities as the sixth distinguished educator to serve as Princeton University's "Graduate Dean." Succeeding physicist Donald Ross Hamilton, under whose bold and imaginative leadership the Graduate School has risen to its present enrollment of some 1,150 students (a jump of 300% since World War II), the 46-year old Pittendrigh becomes the first biologist, and fifth scientist), named to a post established during Woodrow Wilson's presidency of the University.

The English-born Pittendrigh, an American citizen since 1950, has gained renown for his researches on "living clocks," the innate physiological rhythms governing all living organisms except bacteria, and has helped spotlight some of the problems involved in living in space. Noting five years ago that science was not yet in a position to pinpoint the environmental features which must be simulated so that human beings might exist in outer space, he suggested then that periods of night and day might have to be built into manned space ships so that bodily rhythms, regulated in part by signals such as the light cycle, might not be turned topsy-turvy.

In his concentration on the general question, "What are the 'living clocks' by which so many species operate and what makes them tick?", Pittendrigh, a Princetonian since 1917 and one of the community's knowledgeable trout fishermen, has worked with insects, clams and single-celled beings and has won the support of major organizations, including the National Science Foundation and the Office of Naval Research. He and his associates have been able to show, among other phenomena, that the response of these hidden rhythms to the earth's cyclical, constantly changing relation to the sun enables them to measure time and even to serve as navigational aids for birds and insects.

A graduate of the University of Durham (England), with first-class honors, and prior to enrolling for doctoral studies at Columbia, he earned the degree of Associate in Trinidad's Imperial College of Tropical Agriculture. For a period of several years, based in the jungles of the West Indies and Brazil, he carried forward research on the fundamentals of the scourge of malaria and was responsible for developing a method of control for Bromeliad-Malaria, a vicious type of malaria transmitted by a species of mosquito that breeds in tree-top Bromeliad plants.

Pittendrigh, formerly an adviser on malaria to both the Brazilian Government and the British Colonial Office in Trinidad and now active on the editorial boards of several scientific journals, is a member of the Space Science Board of the National Academy of Sciences, the Biological Sciences Subcommittee of the National Aeronautics and Space Administration, and the Scientific Advisory Group to the Air Force Office of Scientific Research. This past year he chaired the study group established by the National Academy (to which he was elected in 1963) to evaluate plans for the biological exploration of Mars in the 1970's.

For perpetuating traditions molded by other eminent Princetonians, including Hamilton, Hugh Stott Taylor and Luther Pfahler Eisenhart; for combining with teaching and pure research the often onerous burdens of educational administration; for sensing the dimensions of the challenges presented by modern-day higher education; he is TOWN TOPICS' nominee as

THE GREAT U-TURN

In Selma, Alabama. The awaited call from the National Council of Churches came again to Princeton at 11 a.m. Tuesday.

The Commission on Religion and Race at 8 Quarry Street turned into a controlled madhouse. Volunteers were rallied for a three-day, Selma-to-Montgomery civil rights march, to begin on Thursday. "And bring a sleeping bag."

At noon, the word came to hold off. "It was all a mistake." The volunteers and telephoners went back on standby, ready to go as soon as the word came.

Another set of volunteers, meanwhile, are working up plans for inter-racial group discussions, "face - to - face," through the offices of Princeton Association for Human Rights. It is rumored that a group of Selma school children will visit the Witherspoon School.

Princeton's first dynamic involvement with the racial issue came Sunday evening when First Presbyterian Church was packed to the balconies to hear the ten returnees from Selma describe "the great U-turn." No other inter-racial gathering in recent years has drawn such a crowd.

They gave $514.95 to the cause in a spontaneous offering. The majority lent its support to a Princeton Association for Human Rights' statement to State Senator Sido L. Ridolfi in favor of Bill AJR-20 now under debate. An "unexpected" number, according to a clergyman who went to Selma, have volunteered to march in the next civil rights demonstration.

Speakers were the Rev. Albert D. Tyson of Mt. Pisgah AME Church, president of the Princeton Pastors' Association and PAHR, the Rev. Dr. Robert R. Spears of Trinity Church, the Rev. Rowland Cox, Episcopal chaplain at Princeton University; astro-physicist George B. Field of Princeton University, the Rev. Dr. Donald M. Meisel of First Presbyterian Church.

Also, the Rev. James Andrews, interim pastor of interracial Witherspoon Presbyterian Church and assistant to the president of Princeton Seminary; Rabbi Everett Gendler of the Princeton Jewish Center, who served as co-leader of a delegation from the Rabbinical Assembly; the Rev. Dudley Sarfety, head of the New Jersey Presbyterians' Commission on Religion and Race, and Mrs. Mary Gendler, wife of the rabbi, who went to Selma "unofficially." Professor Malcolm Diamond of the University's department of religion was absent.

In other developments, the vestry of Trinity Episcopal Church gave full backing on Monday to the Rev. Dr. Spears' participation in the Selma demonstrations. A copy of its unanimous resolution has been sent to the vestry of St. Paul's Episcopal Church in Selma, which barred 20 demonstrators, including Episcopal clergy, last Sunday.

The PAHR office, 170 Witherspoon Street, has announced a plea for money for the voter registration struggle in Alabama and for families of the late Jimmie Lee Jackson and the Rev. James J. Reeb, victims of Alabama violence. The money will be put into a joint fund and sent to Alabama. (For further details, see page 12.)

From Pennington, Too. Adding to the ferment of activity were clergy from Princeton and Pennington who went to Washington on Friday. Members joined the gathering of some 3,500 people at the Lutheran Church of the Reformation. A delegation of 16 was sent to talk with President Johnson. Local representatives were among nearly 400 New Jerseyans who attended a 1 p.m. conference with Senator Clifford L. Case, hearing his endorsement of voter rights legislation.

Attending the Washington meeting were the Rev. Kenneth S. Dannenhauer of Calvary Baptist, Dr. Meisel of First Church, the Rev. Serge Rizzo of Rosedale Chapel, the Rev. Luther H. Kriefall of Messiah Lutheran, the Rev. Mr. Tyson, the Rev. Mr. Sarfety and the Rev. and Mrs. Robert L. Cope of the Unitarian Church. From

NOTICE TO READERS

To facilitate acceptance of additional display advertising and to accommodate the unusual volume of news, articles and pictures, TOWN TOPICS this week is printed in two sections totalling 52 pages. The resultant mechanical requirements have necessitated some rearrangement of the order in which various departments usually appear, but the Index on page 3 should provide whatever guidance is necessary.

The two-section procedure is not permanent, although it will serve as a safety valve whenever TOWN TOPICS requires an extra four pages. This week, incidentally, display advertising is some 11.7% ahead of last year's corresponding issue, and circulation is at an all-time peak of 16,439.

Pennington, the Rev. James W. Marshall, Methodist, the Rev. Walter Coats, First Presbyterian, and an un-named student from Princeton Seminary who felt he should join because the murdered Rev. Reeb was a graduate of the seminary.

In a concerted action,special prayers were offered at Sunday services in all of the churches for civil rights crusaders in the south. Many included prayers for the victims of the recent demonstrations.

Two former "Princetoolans" were involved in the Selma demonstrations. The Rev. Dr. Richard Luecke, who left Messiah Lutheran Church last June, was a member of a Chicago delegation. He was seen by several of the Princeton clergy.

Mrs. Mary Gonzalez, active in the Community Players and Theatre Intime when she lived in Penns Neck, was one of the 70 white persons who walked with Selma Negroes on the ill-fated Sunday when they were met with tear gas and police brutality. Now a resident of Birmingham, she made a fund-raising phone call to Mrs. John Drury of 41 Harrison Street the following day.

She said that her teenage daughter walked with her. She added that a number of demonstrators were staying at her house and that she was harassed by obscene phone calls.

Also, the former rector of Trinity Church, the Rev. Dr. John V. Butler, now dean of the Cathedral of St. John the Divine, New York City, wrote a special litany which was used Sunday afternoon at an inter-faith memorial service for the Rev. Mr. Reeb and Jimmy Jackson.

Some people shook their heads at the whole thing. Refusing to be quoted, they doubted the value of street demonstrations and sitting in front of the White House. One woman rose in the middle of a Trinity service on Sunday and walked out.

Service at First Church. Princeton's interdenominational service, held at 8 p.m. Sunday at First Presbyterian Church, was sponsored by the Pastors' Association. The Rev. Mr. Cox gave the sermon. He was assisted by the Rev. Dr. Spears. The unprecedented crowd stayed to hear the comments of all who had been in Selma.

"I doubt that I will ever go into Borough Hall and use a voting machine," The Rev. Mr. Andrews said, "without thinking that people have died for this." A native of Texas, he spoke haltingly of his own conversion to the civil rights movement.

To this, Dr. Field added, "The churches of Princeton have not achieved any integration . . . This is a scandal of 1965."

From the Rev. Mr. Tyson, who chaired the discussioo, came the comment, "Hatred is always difficult to understand . . . The Selma march was a demonstration of the fact that people who believe deeply in the cause cannot be called off."

Some Qualms Expressed. "There were some persons who had some qualms about breaking the Federal law," he added, and asked the others present how they felt about it.

"This question of breaking a Federal injunction," Dr. Spears said, "is one that I have heard raised most often since I came back. I don't recall any particular qualms about it at the time . . . We were not going to be the leaders, we were the followers . . . There was a puzzle among us at the time of the confrontation, but from where we were, we couldn't hear a thing. Then we made that big U-turn. Most of us at that point did not know that this was all part of the plan. . ."

From Rabbi Gendler came the comment that demonstrating "can be habit-forming," which drew a laugh from the audience. "It is not a flaunting of the law," he added, "but in a sense a gentle reprimand to the law itself."

"It seemed to me," Dr. Meisel said, "that Martin Luther King was marching on a very fine line that day. If no march had taken place, he would have lost his leadership. No question about it, that group was ready to go! He walked that very fine line, and I think he showed great wisdom."

Situation Very Tense. "It's a very tense situation," the Rev. Mr. Cox noted. He spoke at length on the frustration of the southern Negro. He said later that the response of the churches throughout the country to the call from Dr. King was the first mass response they have given.

The Rev. Mr. Cox, Dr. Field and Professor Diamond stayed overnight at the home of Mrs. William Harrell in the Negro section. The Rev. Dr. Spears and another clergyman stayed with the Rev. A. Williams, pastor of the West Trinity Baptist Church. "Everywhere they turn," he said "there is a wall."

The Rev. Mr. Tyson stayed at the Jefferson Davis Hotel in Montgomery, "where Wallace often holds his meetings with the Klan. It's the capitol of the Confederacy," he said wryly. A member of his church, Mrs. Alice Wilson of 21 Clay Street, arrived in Selma last Wednesday.

The funds raised at the Sunday meeting will be divided between the families of the Rev. Mr. Reeb, Jimmy Lee Jackson, the Student Non-Violent Coordinating Committee and Dr. King's Southern Christian Leadership Conference.

"Wholehearted Approval"

The vestry of Trinity Episcopal Parish has issued a statement endorsing the rector's civil rights stand. The resolution was unanimously passed at a special meeting held Monday evening.

"Inasmuch as our rector, the Rev. Robert R. Spears Jr., has, by answering the call to bear witness in Selma, Alabama, on March 8 and 9 in the face of great uncertainty, adversity and danger, set a high example of courage and Christian concern for his fellowmen, not only to the people of Selma but to the people of this parish,

"Be it resolved that the vestry of this parish do unanimously commend the courageous witness he has born, and wish the parish at large to know that he has the vestry's wholehearted admiration and approval of the action he has taken."

HARTMANN RESIGNS

As Day School Principal. Thomas B. Hartmann has resigned as Principal of Princeton Day Schools, effective next Wednesday, March 24.

According to an announcement from the Board of Trustees, Princeton Day Schools will open as scheduled next September at its new campus on The Great Road. A selection Committee of trustees has been appointed to look for a successor to Mr. Hartmann.

The resignation comes almost exactly two years after Mr. Hartmann's appointment as first principal of the combined Miss Fine's School-Princeton Country Day School. His appointment was announced on March 27, 1963. The resignation of Miss Shirley Davis as headmistress of Miss Fine's was announced a scant month ago.

"I had a definite vision of a dynamic independent school with high standards and a dynamic education program based on filling the needs of the student in 1965 and in the future," Mr. Hartmann said, in an interview with Town Topics, "but people here weren't ready for it."

"I believe the primary responsibility of a school to the student is to be relevant to society," he continued, "aware of the present condition of society and the problems it must solve. You can't do this with a standard type of college preparatory approach."

Mr. Hartmann spoke of the changes that would have been necessary to implement his ideas. One of these involved more independent study time for the students, with fewer class meetings and more opportunities to read, in depth, without traditional class hours.

"Many people thought that these various ideas would weaken the academic side of the school, but they do not," he said. "Many independent schools in the country are moving strongly ahead along the same lines, and their graduates are more ready for college and society than they would be otherwise."

Students Are Alert. Commenting on today's high-school students, Mr. Hartmann spoke of their alertness to the world.

"They're concerned about Viet Nam," he said as an example, "and they know the arguments for and against our involvement there. They are keenly interested in civil rights — some girls at Miss Fine's are very active in this line, of course. They have adult approaches to problem-solving, even though they are still immature."

"I do not believe in a 'pressure-cooker' approach to teaching," he stated. "I believe one can accomplish much more with a student by excitingg and relevant approaches to the curriculum."

Mr. Hartmann said that he had no bitterness toward the Board of Trustees, and no plans for his own future except to remain involved with contemporary education.

The outgoing principal also annuunced the resignation of Douglas Pedersen as Dean and George Warren as head of the Upper School. Mr. Pedersen has been teaching a seminar in the aesthetics of creative expression in addition to performing his other duties.

In accepting Mr. Hartmann's resignation "with regret," the trustees expressed their "respect for his educational ideals, admiration of his courage and warm regard for the man himself."

Job Was Difficult. "Difficulties were inherent in the job he undertook, involving the merger of two schools and the creation of a new one," said the trustees' formal statement, "but the difficulties were even more complex than could be foreseen and intensified beyond any reasonable expectation."

"The Board affirms its debt to Mr. Hartmann for his vision of the entity that the school could and will become, and for his determined efforts toward reaching the goal that had been set."

To carry the two schools through the months ahead, the trustees have named an Administrative Committee with Mrs. J. Richardson Dilworth as chairman, and Arthur P. Morgan, E. Dudley H. Johnson, Frederick P. Lawrence, Mrs. E. B. O. Borgerhoff and Mrs. Arthur M. Sherwood to direct the schools and make the decisions normally made by the principal.

A faculty committee on operations will report to the Administrative Committee on the daily business of the schools, plans for the move to the new campus and the curriculum for the coming year.

This committee coosists of Herbert McAneny and Mrs. Alan D. Williams for the Upper School and Fowler Merle-Smith and Mrs. Roy S. Vogt for the Junior School.

In its statement, the Board of Trustees said of Mr. Hartmann:

"Educational institutions are the products of the ideas, the competence, and the labor of many—never of a single person—but when the history of

BUDGET PASSES

In Township. The plight of the little man, the wage-earner who makes $5,000 a year or less and finds himself strapped by Princeton Township taxes, was sympathetically reviewed Monday night at Township Committee when Leonard di Donato, 2 Tall Timbers Drive, rose to speak for the 200 families who are members of the Italian-American Sportsmen's Club.

The occasion was the public hearing on the Township's $1,227,806 budget.

"I'm talking about janitors, mailmen, cooks," Mr. di Donato began. "Princeton has been driving these people out by high taxes. You take a janitor at the University—he averages maybe $3,000 a year, and that puts him in President Johnson's 'poverty category.'"

"Or you take a mail carrier, making about $5,500 or about $4,500-$5,000 for a maintenance man at RCA. Maybe he bought a lot on Harris Road or Henry Avenue for $600-$700 and built a house on it 15 years ago with his own labor. Well, today that house gets assessed for maybe $30,000 and he has to pay $800 a year in taxes. I think the Township budget ought to be sent back to each Township department for a 3% cut."

Penalty for Improvement. Mayor Carl C. Schafer assured Mr. di Donato that Committee had already pared down departmental requests. "This is a pretty skimpy budget," Mr. Schafer said.

"The more I fix up my place, the more I have to pay in taxes," observed Frank Cuomo Jr., 419 Franklin. "You're driving me to neglect my property!"

"Taxes in Princeton Township aren't going up any faster than they are any place else," said Administrator Joseph R. Nini. "It's land values that we're all the victims of."

Where to Cut? Mr. di Donato had suggested that such items as recreation could be cut deeply in the interest of lower taxes, but David Hapgood, 22 Cedar Lane, who had come to the hearing as a representative of PAHR, said:

"We agree with Mr. di Donato and Mr. Cuomo, but the solution is not to cut essential services, but to broaden the tax base."

Committeeman John O. Green told Mr. Hapgood he would welcome suggestions and then admitted, "We have had some success in attracting industry, but not much."

Road, also present for PAHR, asked whether there was enough money in the capital budget to start a community swimming pool in the fall, and Mayor Schafer said, yes, there was.

Defends Program. Mr. Alpert said the Township recreation budget was inadequate compared to Lawrenceville or Rocky Hill, and he pointed to the lack of a teen program and a swimming pool, and to the amount of money budgeted for salaries in the recreation department.

"The slight cutback in funds hasn't affected our program," said Donald Barr, recreation director. "We plan adult softball, basketball, badminton, volleyball. . . . ."

After a 30-minute hearing, the budget was unanimously adopted.

The "little man" came on the scene again when Committee authorized a petition to the legislature asking permission to recruit patrolmen who live outside the Township, but within five miles of police headquarters.

After some discussion which skirted the real issue, Mayor Schafer agreed with Henry Frank, 162 Valley Road, that the whole point was economic: not many policemen can afford to live in the Township.

MAN OF THE WEEK: Colin S. Pittendrigh, newly - appointed Dean of the Graduate School. (See cover.)

Ordinances were passed providing for the paving of Race Street from Birch Avenue to Community Park to give access to the new parking lot, and to lay 200 feet of sidewalk on Prospect Avenue east to Philip Drive. Public hearings on both on April 5 at 8.

Donald A. Pickering, 92 Edgerstoune Road, was appointed to a three-year term on the Board of Health. A practicing dentist, Dr. Pickering previously served on the Borough Board of Health before moving to the Township.

James G. Campbell Jr. 93 Battle Road, was re-appointed to a three-year term on the Zoning Board.

Committee received from the Planning Board its "no" recommendation on a North Harrison Street post office, and Mr. Frank said he thought Township Committee should ask the post office department to withdraw its request formally.

2-4-6-8...

We Like to Demonstrate. The harbingers of spring—due Saturday—are unmistakable: longer days, crocuses budding—and student demonstrations.

The rising of the sap seems to trigger an urge to protest something - anything - among the students. Last week it was Viet Nam, with one group protesting another's protest against U. S. intervention.

This week, there was the student protest of the firing of a University Store employee. "Puritanical" and "shameful callousness", said the students.

Perhaps more understandable was the outpouring of some 400 to 500 students who marched down Nassau Street late Saturday following Princeton's dazzling triumph over Providence for a berth in the finals of the NCAA tournament.

According to Chief Peter J. McCrohan, the students marched down Nassau and built a bonfire at the corner of Prospect and Washington Road from wood collected from the nearby Woodrow Wilson construction site. A second bonfire was ignited in Holder Court.

About 500 poured out of Chapel Drive and went as far as Miss Fine's School, where a dance was in progress, before doubling back to Holder Court, the Chief said. One student jumped on top of a car, denting its hood.

Chief McCrohan added that, everything considered, the students had conducted themselves well. We made no arrests, he added.

Road was the scene Friday and although the site was different, the story was the same: more car vandalism.

Police spotted several cars damaged when they investigated a report that a firecracker or similar device had been thrown against the side of a house at 57 Jefferson and exploded. Time of the incident was 3:10 a.m.

A car parked in the drive at that address belonging to Josef Gross had its wiper blades and rear license bent and its side view mirror snapped off. Police said that it marked the third or fourth time within the past month that Mr. Gross' car had been vandalized.

A small English car owned by Leonard Evans, same address, had its front bumper bent in half. One portion of it had been torn from the car's frame.

Police added that cars owned by Mrs. Margaret Dexter and Robert Ayers, parked in a garage adjacent to 57 Jefferson, received the same wiper-blade, license plate treatment. A third car owned by John Cosach, parked behind the Dexter house, was also damaged.

On Sunday, Miss Eleanor Baker, 64 Clay Street, called to report her car's convertible top had been slashed in two places. She said it had been parked near the Clay Street playground.

Last week a steward at Key and Seal Club, Prospect Avenue, reported three vending machines in a second floor game room had been the target of a thief. An estimated $17.50 was taken from one machine, but the thief was foiled in his attempt to rifle the other two. One had been turned upside down in an effort to shake the money out, police said.

USSR ENVOY TO SPEAK

In Alexander Hall. Nikolai T. Fedorenko, appointed in January permanent representative from the Soviet Union to the United Nations, will discuss "The Soviet Union and the United Nations" at 8 p.m. on Tuesday in Alexander Hall.

Ambassador Fedorenko's talk is co-sponsored by the Princeton community chapter of the American Association for the United Nations of the United States and American Whig—Cliosophic Society. A question-and-answer period follows the lecture.

A member of the Russian diplomatic corps since 1939, Ambassador Fedorenko is a graduate of the Moscow Institute of Eastern Studies. He headed the Foreign Ministry's Far Eastern department from 1952 to 1955. He was made a member of the ministry's Collegium, or cabinet, in 1954 and served as deputy foreign minister from 1955 to 1958, when he was sent to Japan as ambassador extraordinary and plenipotentiary.

Ambassador Fedorenko, who served for 11 years in China, is a doctor of philosophy and a professor of history of Chinese literature. He has recently published a book on Japanese literature. In 1959 he was elected an associate member of the USSR Academy of Sciences.

Married and the father of three children, he will be accompanied to Princeton by his wife. A reception will be held at 5 p.m. at Whig-Clio.

Heart Fund Needs Help

A $4,000 gap in Princeton's contributions to the Mercer County Heart Association has contributed to a decision by the association to extend its drive into March.

Last year, Princeton led all Mercer County communities with a $10,000 contribution to the drive, but preliminary returns indicate that all other communities have surpassed Princeton this year in achieving their goals.

Thomas L. Brophy Jr. is chairman for Princeton, assisted by John J. Goida, Mrs. Louise Bristol and Mrs. Kenneth Cromwell.

YOUTH FINED $50

For Assaulting Another. Lloyd Tucker, 18, 48 Birch Avenue, was fined $40 and $10 court costs Monday by Borough Magistrate Theodore T. Tams Jr. for assault. He pleaded not guilty.

Tucker and Edward Williams, 18, 71 Clay Street, were charged with slugging Robert Mooney, a high school senior, during an altercation in a school hallway following a basketball game last month. Mooney's nose was cut and broken in the fracas.

The assault charge against Williams, who also pleaded not guilty, was dismissed. Mooney was the complainant.

Ronald Yates, 40, 9 Margerum Court, charged with committing an act of indecent exposure last month on a borough street, waived a preliminary hearing. His case was then referred to a grand jury. Yates is free on $1,500 bail.

A 19-year-old University student, John Torkelsen of 613 Pyne Hall, was held in contempt by Magistrate Tams. Judge Tams was angered when Torkelsen — charged with illegally parking all night on Hulfish Street — sent his check heavily stapled to the summons and enclosed a self-addressed envelope on which he had written: "Receipt on extortion by a hick town."

Asked to explain his actions, the student replied that he had looked up 'extortion' in the dictionary and read it meant "to obtain funds illegally by threat."

Torkelsen said he felt this described the situation perfectly and he refused to retract anything.

In traffic court, Gary Deindorfer, 21, of Trenton, and Ralph Wagner, 54, of Somerville were each fined $15 after both had pleaded not guilty to careless driving. They were the drivers involved in a recent spectacular crash between a tractor trailer and a compact car on Bayard Lane.

Redus E. Glaze Jr., 46, 109 Linden Lane, and James B. Schmidt Jr., 54, Van Kirk Road, paid $12 each for stop sign violations. For speeding, Ronald C. Wells, 23, 57 Birch Avenue, was fined $19, while Howard J. Ramberger, 19, Mt. Lucas Road, paid $10 for driving an unsafe vehicle.

CENTER SEEKS FUNDS

For Study Help. Princeton's Study Center, facing a financial crisis, needs to raise $500 immediately to meet operating expenses for the rest of the academic year.

William Linke finance chairman, said in addition that the Center needs at least $3,000 to carry on it expanded programs during the 1965-66 school year.

This year, the Center has started a Reading Improvement Program for sixth through 12th graders, financed by contributions from the Lions Club. Seventeen boys and girls have enrolled in the program, which meets Monday , Tuesday and Wednesday evenings, and the Study Center has room for more youngsters who would like to enroll.

Mr. Linke asked for support from church groups, civic organizations (the Jaycees have also made a sizeable contribution) and parent-teacher groups.

Contributions to the Center may be mailed to John Borden, treasurer, 160 Hodge Road.

HOSPITAL IS SUBJECT

Of New Radio Series. "Know Your Hospital" is the title of a new series of programs being presented by the Nassau Broadcasting Company in cooperation with Princeton Hospital. It can be heard every Tuesday morning on Betty Gates' "Merry-Go-Round" on station WHWH.

The first program covered the hospital's maternity department. Subsequent programs will discuss such areas as the intensive care unit, pediatrics, medical and surgical units, the emergency department, laboratory and x-ray departments and admissions.

"A community hospital, supported by its townspeople is a unique organization," said David Moss, WHWH manager. He added: "We hope that these programs will help the community to understand what a good hospital really is, how it operates and what its problems are."

"DAUGHTERS" TO MEET

Those who wish to attend may call 921-8818 after 5 for additional information.

TO REPLACE BRIDGE

On Quaker Bridge Road. The New Jersey Public Utility Commission will replace the bridge spanning the main line of the Pennsylvania Railroad on Quaker Bridge Road in Lawrence Township with a four-lane bridge.

The state will pay 70% of the estimated $600,000 total cost and the railroad and Mercer County will each pay 15%. Construction will start as soon as possible, the commission reported, and will be completed before the end of August next year.

The current bridge was built in 1911 and is inadequate for handling the 7,000 cars a day that have passed over it during the past year, the commission said. It is estimated that the traffic will increase to 14,000 a day in 20 years.

Mayor Charles E. Connell Jr. of Lawrence Township has testified that 10 auto accidents have occurred on the bridge since September, 1961. The county is currently acquiring property along the road's right-of-way to permit widening the bridge. The road will be closed for several weeks when construction starts.

STATISTICIANS TO MEET

Talk on India. "A Statistician's View of India" is the subject of an address to be given Tuesday at 8 before members of the American Statistical Association, Central New Jersey Chapter.

Forman S. Acton, associate professor of engineering at Princeton, will be the speaker. The talk will be given in the faculty lounge of the Engineering Quadrangle building.

WHO'S ADOLESCENT?

We Are! The young adolescent will be scrutinized under the microscope Monday during a "Spring Afternoon at School" arranged by the Princeton Borough Elementary PTA.

The "Afternoon" will be at Witherspoon School starting with lunch at 1 and continuing with a program at 1:45. Parents of children in grades five through eight are invited.

Four panel members, moderated by Philip Cobb, will discuss "The Young Adolescent as seen by a Teacher, a Nurse, a Social Worker, a Psychologist." Participants will be James Messersmith, science teacher at Witherspoon; Mrs. John Trimble, executive director of the Family Service Agency, Miss Mildred Kaplan, Borough school nurse, and W. Donald Clark school psychologist.

Luncheon reservations may be made by calling Mrs. Paul Ashton, 924-3502. The cost of the lunch is 50 cents.

AVIATRIX SHAKEN UP

As Plane Leaves Runway. Mrs. Helen Newman, 34, of Berkeley Heights, received cuts and abrasions Sunday when her plane veered off the runway shortly after landing at the Princeton Airport. She was treated at Princeton Hospital and released.

Airport officials said Mrs. Newman was the victim of a "ground loop," a not uncommon peril which causes a taxiing plane to keep turning in one direction. Her 1947 single-engine plane veered to the left into a cluster of trees. At the time her speed was estimated to be 25 miles-per-hour.

There was no explosion or fire and Mrs. Newman — an experienced pilot — was able to extricate herself from the badly-damaged plane. The mishap occurred shortly before noon.

Stage-coach excursions from Philadelphia to Princeton were a spring delight back in the '90s. This coach-and-four and its gay party of travelers pranced up from Philadelphia on May 12, 1894, and stopped at the new Princeton Inn before continuing on to New York.

The Princeton Inn was just one year old. Does it look oddly familiar? It's Miss Fine's School now, of course.

The scene may change but since 1904 the quality, service and the integrity of the "U" Store remains the same . . . you can depend on it!

UJA DINNER PLANNED

For March 31. The Princeton United Jewish Appeal will hold its annual dinner on Wednesday, March 31, at the Jewish Center.

Eleazar Lipsky, president of the Jewish Telegraphic Agency, will be the guest speaker. A former member of the National Executive Committee of the Zionist Organization of America, Mr. Lipsky is a best-selling author and attorney.

He has served also as vice-president of the American-Jewish League for Israel and was a past editor of a magazine named New Palestine. Mr. Lipsky is a native of New York and a graduate of Columbia Law School.

PROPOSES NURSING HOME

In Lawrence Township. Application to build a $1 million, 50-room nursing home in Lawrence Township will be made to the Lawrence Zoning Board on April 14. Joseph Mizsur, developer of the Tall Timbers subdivision off Carter Road, hopes to construct the home an 36 acres off Van Kirk Road in North Lawrence.

According to Mr. Mizsur, the home would be a short-stay convalescent home. It would not care for the elderly, the mentally ill or those with communicable diseases.

If the township approves, Mr. Mizsur will construct a one-and-a-half story fireproof building measuring about 30,000 square feet. It would be located about 2,000 feet back from Van Kirk Road and a similar distance from neighboring houses. The property has a 50-foot frontage on Van Kirk. It includes the old Lawrenceville Quarry.

The builder plans to construct his own package treatment plant if the home cannot be connected to the Ewing-Lawrence Sewage Authority. The quarry is spring-fed and could be used as a water source, Mr. Mazsur says.

The home would be staffed with professional nurses, with physicians visiting daily. Plans also call for a private ambulance.

Mr. Mazsur disclosed his plans Monday at a meeting with the executive committee of the North Lawrence Citizen's Association and several individual property owners. Dudley E. Woodbridge, association president, said later that his group was taking no position at present.

A $750,000 convalescent home was tentatively proposed last year for the Princessville Research Park in Lawrence, but no formal application was submitted.

TO DISCUSS TAXES

At Women Voter Meetings. The Princeton League of Women Voters will discuss New Jersey's financial condition at the March unit meetings next week.

On Tuesday, there will be meetings at 9:30 a.m. in the Methodist Church and at 8.15 that evening at the home of Mrs. Sydney Willis of 59 Longview Drive. The following day, the units will meet at 10 a.m. at the home of Mrs. Walter at 8.15 p.m. in the home of Mrs. Wagoner of 4 Hunter Road and William Angoff, 19 Meadowbrook Road.

The West Windsor unit will meet at 8 15 Tuesday at 1 Glenview Drive. The Montgomery Township group will hold its meeting Wednesday at 8:15 in the First National Bank in Belle Mead.

grade patrol of Cadette troop 18 will participate in a "galloping" dinner Saturday.

The meal will consist of four courses and will be served at four locations. Hors d'oeuvres will be served at Karen DeMauro's house, 630 Prospect Avenue, and a short walk to the home of Mary Ann Pritchard of 113 Adams Drive will stimulate the Cadettes' appetite for soup and salad.

The next stop is 19 Howe Circle, the home of Meg Edelman, where the entree will be served. The energetic meal will conclude with desert at 78 Harrison, Street, where Claudia Dupraz will be the hostess.

Why the run-around? The dinner is a prelude to the "challenge of social dependability," according to a troop leader.

News Of The CHURCHES

NEW CREED PROPOSED

By Dowey Committee. A new statement of Presbyterian faith, up-dating the 317-year-old Westminster Confession, has been prepared by a study committee headed by Professor Edward A. Dowey of Princeton Seminary. The committee of pastors and theologians was appointed in 1958 by the United Presbyterian Church in the USA.

The new creed, for the first time, gives the Presbyterians a specific social mission, committing it to integration, defending inter-racial marriage, and advocating the preservation of peace and the abolition of poverty.

Called the "Confession of 1967," the proposal goes before the General Assembly this May in Columbus, Ohio. If adopted, it will be re-submitted to the assemblies in 1966 and 1967. It is also subject to ratification by two-thirds of the denomination's 193 presbyteries.

The 5,000-word "Confession of 1967" also questions the "inerrancy" of the literal Bible, stating that it is to be reinterpreted in each age in the light of increasing knowledge.

According to Dr. Dowey, the new statement supplements the Westminster Confession, (drawn up in England and ratified by Parliment in 1648) which centers on predestination and the infallibility of the Bible. An amendment in 1903 modified the 17th century Calvinist belief that some men are foreordained to heaven, while others are damned.

Instead, the Dowey committee will recommend that the Westminster Confession, the Confession of 1967, and six other historical statements of faith, such as the Apostles' Creed and the Nicene Creed, all be included in the Presbyterian church constitution, thus de-emphasizing the Westminster Confession.

"The Reformed Church," Dr. Dowey concludes, "if the name means anything, must always be willing to reform."

SHORTAGE REPORTED

In Negro Clergy. The Rev. C. Shelby Rooks, associate director for the Fund for Theological Education, 163 Nassau Street, has called attention to the scarcity of young Negroes who want to become ministers.

Writing in the current issue of "Christianity and Crisis," Dr. Rooks notes that, at the present rate of Negro enrollment in the various seminaries, "it is almost an impossibility for the churches to replace older Negro ministers who die or retire, to say nothing of increasing the supply."

About 130 Negro ministers are graduated each year, Dr. Rooks says, to supply all the pulpits and administrative positions open to Negroes. There are reportedly 26,000 churches alone in the largest Negro denomination, the National Baptist Convention.

"Negro young people are exceeding unwilling," he said, "to accept segregation in any area of life." He stated that they know that as ministers the opportunities would be exceedingly limited outside of all-Negro institutions. "The fact is that most of our seminaries prepare their men to minister to middle-class white Protestants, and Negroes cannot yet look forward to such a ministry."

Another cause of the shortage, Dr. Rooks said, is the increasing competition on Negro college campuses from Government and industry for the relatively small number of genuinely talented people these colleges can produce."

The fund for Theological Education is concerned with recruiting Negro seminarians and providing them with financial aid. According to Dr. Rooks, none of the predominantly Negro denominations have a full time worker in seminary recruitment, and the predominently white denominations take little interest in "any program aimed specifically at the theological education of their Negro communicants."

Dr. Rooks suggests that churches step up recruitment programs, that seminaries reach out for Negroo applicants, instead of watiing for them to apply, and that theological schools broaden their curricula so that Negroes can derive more benefit from the courses.

LENTEN SPEAKER: The Rev. Dr. Samuel D. Proctor of the National Council of the Churches of Christ will preach this Sunday evening at the Lenten service sponsored by the Princeton Pastors' Association at First Presbyterian Church.

BAPTIST RITE NEXT

In PPA Lenten Series. The Princeton Pastors' Association will conduct worship service in the Baptist tradition this Sunday at the third of its 8 p.m. Leoten preaching services at First Presbyterian Church.

The Rev. Dr. Samuel D. Proctor, an associate general secretary of the National Council of the Churches of Christ, USA, will be assisted by representatives of the Princeton Baptist Churches.

Dr. Proctor, former president of the Agricultural and Technical College of North Carolina, is responsible for directing the Council's program in communication and program interpretation.

A Virginian, he is a graduate of Virginia Union University and Crozier Seminary. He received his doctorate from Boston University. After a pastorate in Rhode Island, he returned to Virginia Union where he rose from faculty member to president. He has also served with the Peace Corps.

DAY CAMP PROPOSED

By Pastors' Group. An interdenominational day camp for juniors has been proposed to the Princeton Pastors' Association. The Protestant churches have been invited to send representatives to an exploratory session at 4 p.m. this Sunday at Calvary Baptist Church.

The Pastors' Association appointed a study group, headed by the Rev. Kenneth S. Dannenhauer of Calvary Baptist, to research the possibilities of such a program. Serving on the committee were Mrs. Harry Succop of Messiah Lutheran Church, Miss Faye Dickerson, Witherspoon Presbyterian; Miss Agenes Smith, First Presbyterian; the Rev. Arthur Lockhart; Trinity Episcopal and Miss Frieda Gardner, Princeton Seminary. All are active in Christian education programs.

The committee has suggested a two-weeks camp program for children who have completed fourth, fifth or sixth grades. The camp would be held from 9:30 to 2 on Monday, Tuesday, Thursday and Friday, hopefully on the grounds of All Saints' Chapel.

The preliminary report of the committee was accepted in February by the Pastors' Association. The final report was presented this month.

CELEBRATE PURIM

At Jewish Center. Against a background of racial crisis which last week took Rabbi Everett Gendler to Selma, Ala., the congregation of the Princeton Jewish Center observes the one-day festival of Purim at a 7 p.m. family service this Wednesday.

Purim, the Festival of Lots, commemorates the deliverance of the ancient Jews from persecution by the Persian chief minister, Haman, as recorded in the Book of Esther. The reading of the Megillah is traditionally part of the service, which not only retells the ancient story but applies its principles to today's prejudices.

The annual Purim carnival was held at the Center on Sunday.

BULLETIN NOTES

Gospel Choir. The national-ly-known Back Home Choir will present a two-hour gospel program at 4 this Sunday in the Princeton High School auditorium. The concert, sponsored by the Young Adult Choir of First Baptist Church, will benefit the church's five-year building fund.

"Teen Revolt." A documentary color film, "Teen Revolt," will be shown at 7:45 p.m. next Saturday, March 27, at the Princeton Assembly of God Church, North Harrison Street and Clearview Avenue. The film comments on teenager's moral rebellion, crime and drug adiction. The Rev. Carl King, minister to teen gangs and beatniks, will discuss problems facing modern youth and the reclamation work of the program, "Teen Challenge." Admission is free.

Person To Person

Cory S. Kammler

An article by a Zoologist told about the strange Lemming, a mouse-like animal. Their habitat is the Arctic and Alpine mountain regions of the Northern Hemisphere. Their population in cycles becomes enormous and their actions then lead some people to believe they go in for self-destruction. What actually happens is that vast numbers outrun their food supply, making them head for the greener, distant valleys below. Large numbers die in attempts to cross lakes, rivers, and even the ocean. Others are killed by snowy owls, jaegers, and Arctic foxes, which gather to feed on their hordes. It is believed that with the depletion of food supply and the crowding, a sort of mass hysteria causes them to go beserk. There are certainly thousands of mysteries in Nature, but we hope there is no mystery about where you can get the best service and greatest bargains . . . this is the place! REAL ESTATE

BACHELOR HIDEAWAY—$17,000

Not exclusively for a bachelor — a career girl or a young couple in the first stage of home ownership would do as well — this quaint masonry cottage is primarily for someone who wants some land to live on. Two and one-quarter acres, partially wooded, provide plenty of breathing and gardening space, while the four room house — living room, study, bedroom, kitchen plus utility room — has a certain appeal. Actually, it's like buying a comfortable country apartment (Lawrence Township), and what's wrong with that at the price?

GENTLEMAN FARMER'S ESTATE

With this one we are really running the Real Estate gamut! This beauty is for the bachelor or career girl who married well some years back, or for the not-quite-so-young couple who is well along in the home ownership stage.

We have not yet seen this property ourselves so we'll leave the adjectives until we can use them with firehand knowledge and content ourselves with facts and figures. The completely remodeled stone house includes center hall, living room, study, dining room, modern kitchen, six bedrooms, recreation room, utility room and 4½ baths. On the 142 acres including 2500' in road frontage, is a large barn with 30 horse capacity. Subdivideable obviously, but how nice it would be to keep it just as is, horses and all.

A PRESTIGIOUS RESIDENTIAL AREA

Known as Maidenhead for over 100 years, the area of Lawrence Township which includes Longacres was first settled by the Quakers in 1697. Eighty years later the Continental Army camped in its woods prior to the Battle of Princeton.

Primarily residential and rural, Lawrenceville remains one of Mercer County's most favored locations. Today it boasts New Jersey's most beautiful new college campus—Rider, its finest preparatory school—Lawrenceville, its own complete public school system, all municipal sewer and water facilities, plus every other modern suburban advantage.

As the community's finest residential section, Longacres—with its stately trees and homes of authentic Colonial design—maintains the dignity of our early American Heritage.

News Of The THEATRES

"MACBETH"

No Time for Comedy. Departing temporarily from its preoccupation with comedy, McCarter repertory company has added a "special bonus production" to the spring season Shakespeare's "Macbeth" which opened Saturday night and will play again Thursday and Friday, April 1 and 2 and Sunday afternoon, April 4.

McCarter always likes to keep Shakespeare somewhere in the wings, but this is the first time that any Shakespeare play has been repeated. McCarter fans will recall a production of three or four years ago with Jon Cypher in the title role.

To do "Macbeth all over again is to admit rather sheepishly that, yes, McCarter is indeed dedicated to enriching the life of the Princeton undergraduate with a living library, but oh, those busloads of high school kids from Red Bank and Summit!

McCarter has an obligation to them, too, although it is not so well publicized, and after all, they help to flesh out the skeletonal budget, so if they're studying "Macbeth" in school, let's give them "Macbeth" in the gory flesh.

Enter Macbeth. It's a rewarding and absorbing production Arthur Lithgow has directed, a much better one than McCarter saw before. To begin with, Mr. Lithgow has, in Nicholas Kepros, a first-rate actor who gives a taut, mature performance as Macbeth.

Always in full control of body, face and voice, Mr. Kepros builds his character steadily, achieving perhaps his finest effects in the quieter, low-key scenes, as for example, "I have supp'd full with horrors" just before the end, a line which he delivers straight to the heart.

"I AM AFRAID TO THINK WHAT I HAVE DONE." Ronnie Claire Edwards and Nicholas Kepros as Lady Macbeth and Macbeth, in the McCarter Theatre repertory production.

Two other memorable performances come from Clarence Felder as Macduff and Maciutyre Dixon as the Porter. An actor with Mr. Felder's versatility is a golden asset to any repertory company. One thinks of him first as a buffoon, but his straightforward presentation of Macduff displays, as did his contribution to "Richard III" last spring, his craftsmanship as an actor in almost any role he plays.

This year's company has, in Mr. Dixon, an excellent comic indeed, and to his third comic role of the season, he is a broad delight as the Porter. Previously, he has played for us a nervous hypochonddiac in "The Marriage Proposal" and—perhaps less successfully—a country bumpkin in "The Rivals." Now he shows what he can achieve with still another kind of comic approach.

We made a mental note, sitting in the dark, to check the identity of the actor who appears so briefly as the First Murderer because he makes his minute upon the stage a memorable one. If we read our program correctly, it is again Mr. Dixon.

And Lady Macbeth. Ronnie Claire Edwards, as audiences will remember from "The Rivals," is sweet, feminine, blonde and soft-voiced, and to cast her as Lady Macbeth is the most unbelievable cruelty. She tries valiantly, but she cannot help it if she is a light lyric soprano trying to sing Carmen. When she walks in her sleep, her soft blonde hair flowing down her white nightgown, one has an irresistable urge to say "Run along to bed, child, you'll catch your death!" Why, with Ruby Holbrook in the company, was Miss Edwards asked to go through this agony?

Scenery, decor and costumes continue the high standards set from the start of this spring season, although a certain business in the hanquet scene is distracting. Hugh Hardy has designed a two-level stage, the top level reached by a broad flight of 12 steps which can be swung apart to represent gates.

John Conklin suspends over all, a hollow crown of silver which changes, almost before the eye, to the abstract of a skull and it is under this brooding symbol that the tragedy plays itself ont.

—Katharine Bretnall

PIRANDELLO NEXT

In Repertory Series. "As You Desire Me," by Luigi Pirandello, will be introduced into the spring repertory at McCarter Thursday at 7:30 with subsequent performances Friday and Saturday at 8:30 and Sunday at 3.

The play will feature an orginal score composed and performed by the jazz musician Ornette Coleman. In "As You Desire Me," Pirandello derives his comedy, as one critic has pointed out, not from the foibles of character or the stupidity of society, but from the absurdity of life itself.

JOAN BAEZ COMING

March 26. Joan Baez will bring her folksongs to McCarter Theatre on Friday, March 26, at 8:30, marking her first appearance in Princeton since the spring of 1962. Tickets are now on sale at the McCarter box-office.

Miss Baez has been the biggest box-office attraction in folk music history since she first came into prominence in the summer of 1961. Her concert appearances are rare, in spite of her popularity, and the McCarter engagement is one of a scant 30 which she will fill this season.

IT'S NEW To Us

STRIKE'S OVER!

So Have a Chair. Shipments of furniture from Scandinavia, tied up by the longshoremen's strike, have finally been delivered to Viking Furniture, and the quantity is so enormous that we can only begin to touch the new things waiting for your pleasure at the big shop on Nassau Street.

A walnut-topped, tea-faced buffet is a good place to start. Its top extends beyond the body to give a nice roof line and its drawer pulls have been made of walnut to stand out dramatically against the top of the light teak door. Lots of pieces in this line, for bedroom or dining-room.

Up to the bar with a teak stool that has rosewood steps and a matte black vinyl circle for a seat, turned up just a bit at the edge to give you a back. Teetotalers, meanwhile, have been nibbling fruit from the shallow round teak fruit bowl that rests on four legs and triples as bowl, table and—when you lift it from the legs and turn it upside down—serving tray.

Viking Furniture for a piano? Why, not? It's from Hornung and Moeller, biggest organ manufacturers in Europe, designed in spinet size three keys short of full, with cantilevered keyboard.

Pianos may be new here, but desks are old friends. Here's a standup schoolmaster's desk with a black leather inset in the teak top. Lift the top and you have storage. Pull down the front and you have a deep box of a desk which you can sit down to.

Another utilitarian piece is the TV table, low and long, with swivel top that looks just like a tray until you put the television set on it. Four small drawers underneath to keep commercials in.

A big corner table provides the slot for a standard size twin bed. Slide the bed under the table and you've got that much more room in the bedroom. Comes in almost any wood color you want, even vermilion and things like that, or "teak" Formica.

Real moderns will want that pedestal table with its stainless steel base and slate blue formica top. Chairs, in any color base you want, are like the familiar shell chair, but split apart this time, just for kicks. In fabrics, or fibreglas.

One of Viking's most formal pieces is a new U-shaped side chair with curving walnut frame, very contained, and a tapestry upholstery of olive and turquoise. One of Viking's most comfortable pieces is the great big chair, high enough for a head, wide enough for a 200-pounder, tilted back for a snooze, done in a rugged oatmeal.

Housewives will exclaim over the sofa with its three loose pillows at the back. Choose your fabric, and receive a bonus: one third of a yard which you can use for arm sleeves or keep against the tragic day when some guest drops a lighted cigarette. A thoughtful manufacturer.

Accessories come more and more often to Viking these days. You know those charming litro bottles you get when you order wine in an Italian restaurant? Here they are, in three sizes of amber, turquoise, clear or bottle green. Empty.

Kalaha, the game with the wooden marbles, comes to Viking in dark palisander wood, attractive to stand alone even if nobody will play with you. Rough-hewn slate has been set into walnut blocks for a striking pair of book-ends. Dark walnut-colored cork makes some pleasing hot-dish trivets (inexpensive,too) and there are eight dark color coasters for $1.75

Viking is particularly happy about some lamps with smooth pear-shaped bases in earthen olive and brown hues, and shades of white fibreglas with yarn laminated right into the fibre to give the effect of texture.

Think we've covered everything? Don't be silly. We haven't scratched the surface, as the moving man said when he delivered the rosewood dining table.

TO URKEN, TO LAWN

Because It's Spring. Weed killer, crabgrass killer and, on the more positive side, lawn seed and fertilizer are ranged in rows at Urken's week to welcome spring to Princeton and you to the back yard.

Northrup King and Burpee send along seeds for Bright Eyes phlox, dwarf nasturtiums fragrant with summer and tomatoes for hardy gardeners who like to make a salad from the ground up.

Urken's is being redecorated and redesigned, by the way, and that new, cheery white ceiling and the new lights, the bright turquoise pegboards with their burden of tools and the rows of copper kitchen saucepans and handsome casseroles will make you decide that house-and-garden is a pretty good way of life.

Pruning saws, grass clippers, pruning shears and such hand tools as claws, shears, pliers, scythes and lopping shears are

On the Wall

Mexican prints in vivid colors (did you say "Mexican?" Yes!) adorn the walls at that stalwart Latin American outpost the Viking Furniture Store. Just diversification, that's all. The prints are only $2 each, and they go nicely with some Mexican "eye of God" geometrics in primitive pinks and greens.

A little gallery of silkscreens, many of them done by Sister Mary Corita, will appeal to those who like the unusual in art. Sister Mary Corita combines words and modern painting techniques in a most original manner.

Then, getting back to Scandinavia, there are charming children from Hans Christian Andersen, painted brightly on linen for a child's room.

CHRISTIE PLAY PLANNED

By Country Day School. The Country Day School Dramatic Club will present Agatha Christie's mystery, "Witness for the Prosecution," on Friday and Saturday in the school auditorium.

The cast includes Nathaniel C. Hunter, Harold Jaeger, Christopher Laughlin and Donald Pickering in the featured roles. Others in the cast are Robert Wilmot, David French, John Houston, Tom Gaman, Keith Hereford, Christopher Reeve, Stowe Tattersall.

Also, Richard Raines, Anthony Blair, Jerome Pitt, Christopher Mislow, James Young, James Stover, Joseph Chandler, Fred Schluter, Peter Samson and Richard Kane. Herbert McAneny, the school's headmaster, is the director and Gary Lott, assisted by John Taylor and Tom Ford, is in charge of the scenery construction.

The school band under the direction of Sidd Kramer will play. The performances will begin at 8:15 each night. Tickets may be purchased at the school or at the door.

HELLO BIRDIE

High School Show Nearly Ready. Preparation for Princeton High School's "Bye Bye Birdie" production is moving into its final stages.

The show has been in production since January and will open in a little more than a week. Students and faculty have been completing work on lights, sets and costumes for the performances scheduled for March 26 and 27.

In the featured roles are Linda Dents, John Provansano, Carol Avins, Steve Pearson, Richard Goodman and Betty Beck. Mrs. Linda Smith is directing the musical. Tickets may be purchased at the high school and at other locations in Princeton for $1 apiece.

...AND GREEN STAMPS

In Pop Ballet. IBM cards, an ice-cream cone, comic strip panels and green stamps will provide the background for "Life-a-do-it-yourself disaster," the pop ballet that members of the San Francisco Ballet will present to McCarter audiences on Thursday, March 25.

Music for "Life" comes from Charles Ives, the venerated American composer and, in fact, the work of three Americans will be heard and seen when the San Franciscans come to town.

"Shadows," to music by Paul Hindemith, choreographed by Lew Christensen, who is general director of the San Francisco Ballet, and "Octet," choreographed by William Christensen, will also be featured on the program. "Octet" utilizes the music of that adopted American, Igor Stravinsky. It's his "Octet for Wind Instruments."

MORE FROM HITCHCOCK

"Notorious." — Alfred Hitchcock continues to star in McCarter's film series, with "Notorious" scheduled for Tuesday at 8 p.m.

The 1946 thriller features Ingrid Bergman, Cary Grant, Claude Rains and Louis Calhern in a tale of postwar Rio de Janeiro and a German underground plot

ENGLISH LANGUAGE VERSION of "Marriage Italian Style" is playing at the Garden through Tuesday. Sophia Loren and Marcello Mastroianni battle it out in series of skirmishes in the war between the sexes.

"OH DAD" SCHEDULED

By Community Players. The Princeton Community Players has scheduled "Oh Dad, Poor Dad, Mamma's Hung You in the Closet and I'm Feelin' So Sad" as its next production.

The recent off-Broadway hit will open on April 2 and 3 and will continue for two more successive Fridays and Saturdays. The play, which was written by Arthur L. Kopit, will be directed by Lee Yopp, a member of the staff at Rider College.

The cast includes Mildred Wasserman, Tom Queenan, Cindy Grauman, Peter McKinny and Trevor Owens. Curtain time at Murray Theatre will be at 9.

GARDEN

Marriage — Italian Style (Now playing) Marcello Mastroianni hasn't much of a chance in this Italian comedy; Sophia Loren gets all the lines. She plays the part of a Neapolitan prostitute who cons a wealthy young man into setting her up in an apartment. But Mastroianni, a cad to the end, installs her in his mother's apartment as a maid, and has her run the family pastry business on the side.

Loren never lets up in this formidable and funny battle of the sexes, although Mastroianni is as adroit as the script will allow.

English is dubbed in for the Italian-speaking cast in the current version.

PRINCE and PLAYHOUSE

How To Murder Your Wife (now playing) Jack Lemmon and his happy leer score in another salacious Hollywood comedy. Appearing with him are Italian-import Virna Lisi, who looks at first glance like Marilyn Monroe; Terry-Thomas and Eddie Mayehoff, two of the funniest men alive. This is fast company, but Lemmon stays with the pace.

Cast as a comic strip artist who tests out the action with live experiments aided by valet Terry-Thomas, Lemmon wakes up one morning to find that he has married the near-nude girl, Virna Lisi, who appeared in the cake at the previous night's brawl.

Appalled at his lost bachelorhood, he files for divorce and converts his comic strip secret agent into a married man getting rid of his wife. He tries to test this bit of action in real life and ends up in court. His cross-examination of his attorney, Mayehoff, in the courtroom is one of the funniest scenes Lemmon has ever done.

Beauty ON THE SQUARE

By Archimedes (Bernard)

Planning a trip to anywhere in the Sun? At TAVERNWOOD, we offer you a BOOKLET entitled "Proteins and your Skin" in which is the most wonderful recipe for a suntan lotion which we will share with you.

SUNTAN LOTION

Ingredients needed:
2 tablespoons P.P.T. "S-77"
4 oz. strong tea

Make tea as follows: Boil 6 oz. water, while still boiling place 6 teabags in water and continue to boil for 5 minutes. Remove from fire and seep for 15 minutes.

To 4 oz. tea add 2 tablespoons P.P.T. and blend well. This infusion makes the most striking suntan lotion imaginable. The skin takes on a deep golden tan and skin dryness that usually accompanies sun tanning rarely occurs when this lotion is used. Apply to skin generously with spray (windex spray bottles will suffice) just before appearing in sun. Repeat application every 20 minutes. Even those that tan slowly will be amazed at the results when using this lotion.

Keep in refrigerator when not in use.

The P.P.T. herein referred to, and used in ALL of REDKEN cosmetic formulations may be purchased in our TAVERNWOOD BEAUTY SALON for a nominal price in 1 oz. containers.

Our business is "beauty." We want our customers to have normal, healthy skin and hair. Your skin and hair are among your most prized possessions. To help keep them in tip-top condition, they need care. We firmly believe that the "protein" products offered by REDKEN will be just what you are looking for. P.P.T. "S-77" is a hair and skin conditioner, and FEEDS the skin and hair as well as the body.

FOUR ART FILMS BOOKED

At New Strand. "Last Year at Marienbad" will be revived this Wednesday at the New Strand, Lambertville. Considered one of the most original films of the present generation, the story blends the past and present lives of two lovers against the background of an elegant European resort hotel.

"Anatomy of Marriage," two complete films depicting a seven-year marriage from each partner's point of view, will be shown Thursday through Saturday.

The Strand will feature two off-beat contemporary films, Sunday through Tuesday: Truffaut's "Shoot the Piano Player," an Everyman parable, and "Hallelujah the Hills," a comedy by Adolfas Mekas, spoofing film directors froom Griffith to Resnais.

BALLET DELIGHTS

Regional Dancers Perform. The Princeton Regional Ballet continues to justify the faith placed in it by those involved both in its conception and development. From its auspicious but nevertheless tentative beginnings at McCarter Theatre a year ago, it has grown in both concept of operation and skill of execution.

Sunday's spring program as a whole demonstrated two major achievements of the young company. First, it showed unquestionably that under the tutelage of Ballet Mistress Lila Brunner, it can be as touching, lyrical and precise in pure "white ballet" as anyone could possibly wish.

Miss Brunner's re-staging of Fokine's classis "Les Sylphides," which opened the program, showed evidence of painstaking preparation, and the company's surprising softness of line was a pleasure to behold. As usual the choice of guest artists was a judicious one. Kathryn Horne and Ron Sequoio complemented the corps de ballet rather than outshone them by their individual brilliance. Miss Horne, in particular, contributed a floating, seemingly effortless "Mazurka," and bouquets are also in order for Kathleen Hulit's sprightly "Prelude' and Isobel Johnson's graceful "Waltz."

Guest Choreographer. Secondly, the Regional demonstrated its ability to achieve highly satisfactory results with an "outside" guest choreographer, Nelle Fisher, three of whose works constituted the bulk of the program. The most successful of these was "Songs Along the River," a delightful suite of six short dances set to Aaron Copland's "Old American Songs," and ideally suited to the diversity of talent and training present in a regional company.

Miss Fisher's choreography was admittedly derivative, with strong influences of both Martha Graham and Agnes de Mille; the end result is a work of considerable charm in which a group of young dancers can and did acquit itself ably, enhanced by Miss Fisher's own colorful costumes.

"Masquerade," which followed, while not especially profound, is an attractive work set to the brief movements of Mozart's "Eine Kleine Nachmusik." It served principally to illustrate the talents of three of the Regional's young leading ladies: Phyllis Papa, Jeanne Solan and Diane Byer.

It would be easy to fall in love with any of them on sight, and what dancers they are going to be! Miss Papa, in particular, is not only a dead ringer for a young Audrey Hepburn, but does fouettes to the manner born—and she is only fifteen!

Although Miss Fisher and Mozart were at odds in the opening Allegro, the final two movements were more felicitous, and the honors carried off by the three young ladies (ably partnered by Guest Artists George Mamales and Phillip Rice) were richly deserved.

Questionable Choice. Miss Fisher's version of Stravinsky's "Petrouchka," which concluded the program, was a ques-

STRING QUARTET HEARD

In McCosh 10. The Philadelphia String Quartet was heard Friday night in McCosh Hall in the second of two chamber music concerts presented by the university.

Janice Harsanyi was guest soloist; members of the quartet are Veda Reynolds and Irwin Eisenberg, violins, Alan Iglitzin, viola and Charles Brennand, violoncello. The four musicians who comprise the quartet are also members of the Philadelphia orchestra.

The program included Mozart's "Quartet in B Flat Major," K. 458, Bartok's "Quartet No. 3 (1927);" and the "Quartet No 2 in F# Minor for Strings and Soprano," Op. 10 by Arnold Schoenberg. The texts by Stefan George were "Litanei" and "Entrueckung."

For a string quartet to succeed it must possess a first violinist of imagination, one with a strong tone and a variety of ideas on musical expression. An excellent technique is of course, essential but the criteria for evaluating an ensemble of this kind must include more than simply technique.

Miss Reynolds, the leader of the group, did not appear to bring warmth, excitement, passion when called for or tenderness, to any of the music rendered Friday evening, and all three works possessed in abundance the kind of passages where this was necessary. Instead she presented a clean, clear reading of the music; one might almost say detached, and it is this writer's opinion that the music suffered considerably as a result.

The Mozart Quartet is as mellow, romantic and graceful as it is spritely and gleeful. It may not possess quite the variety and angularity which make Haydn's quartets so invigorating to listen to, but it is still undeniably great chamber music.

The first two movements were well played but in the slow movement, the weaknesses mentioned earlier began to make themselves known. Here the phrasing seemed to end abruptly. The intonation was wanting in several places and the music received what I must call a "cool" interpretation, as if the musicians were afraid to over-romanticize the already romantic spirit of the music.

As for the finale, the performance seemed to lack conviction. One might say that the music played the quartet rather than the quartet played the music, so mechanical did the ensemble's interpretation seem to this reviewer.

The Bartok Third Quartet, an intensely emotional and powerful composition, has been heard in Princeton now by three quartets and in three different halls. The Hungarian Quartet played it the best by far at the high school auditorium in 1962.

The Juilliard group gave it a thorough, if less intense reading, at McCarter Theater in a 1963 Series II program, and on Friday, the Philadelphia Quartet performed the work in the ideal hall for chamber music, but fell short of the ideal performance. Much of the melodic tissue of the music simply did not rise to the surface.

Many of the dramatic passages were weak in execution with intonation being a factor in several instances. The work fortunately has a built in excitement which is difficult to destroy, but the problems of balance between the instruments, solved in the Mozart, were not convincingly worked out in the Bartok.

Difficult as this work is, an emotionally lean reading is far less rewarding than one of driving energy, albeit a few mistakes here or there might appear. The Philadelphians gave the former, and a cautious performance does not always make for the best.

Sell-Out Is Expected

Tickets for the Sunday performance of the Banks Brothers and Back Home Choir are selling rapidly and a capacity audience is expected.

The gospel singers will perform in the Princeton High School auditorium at 4 this Sunday. According to Miss Maxine Beagle, who is making preparations for the concert, tickets are still available at the University Store or may be purchased by calling 924-2992 from 7 to 9 p.m. daily.

Tickets may also be obtained at the parsonage of the First Baptist Church on John and Green Streets. The Young Adult Choir of the First Baptist Church in Princeton is sponsoring the performance.

The Schoenberg Quartet received the best performance of the evening and that was only after Mrs. Harsanyi began to sing in the third and fourth movements of the piece. With her splendid voice, which seems more powerful this year (taking into account the smaller hall) than at any time in the past, she welded the entire ensemble into one glorius sound.

Finally the quartet players began to show some warmth. The music began to take on a glow; a mood prevailed. A feeling of expressiveness that earlier did not exist became evident.

The music itself shows Schoenberg, a composer in search of a musical language. The harmonic fibre of the work seems ambivalent.

The magnet of the 19th century is pulling in one direction while the driving curiosity that is genius is pulling its composer toward an unkown region. The first two movements are often lyrical but the contrapuntal texture and the rhythmic monotony of the linear writing thwarts whatever musical direction the music attempts and so the music seems to go nowhere.

It is in the final two movements, with the addition of the vocal line, that the work begins to take shape and purpose. In his next opus, a set of piano pieces, Schoenberg was to leave the 19th century behind for good, and from that work on, his music, whether one accepted it or not, became a potent and influential force in the contemporary circles of that time up to the present.

tionable choice in that the company, in large measure, had little to do except execute an assortment of folk variations and cameo pantomime interpolated into a continuing promenade.

The ballet itself rests upon its three central figures—Petrouchka (or Harlequin), the Ballerina, and the Moor—none of whom has been sufficiently realized by Miss Fisher to achieve the necessary combination of drama and pathos. This is no reflection on the three dancers themselves—Messrs. Mamales and Rice and Guest Artist Carol Estey—who labored mightily and more than made up in energy what their roles lacked in imagination.

Miss Estey, in particular, shows considerable potential as a dancer-actress, of whom there are precious few able to sustain both levels of communication, dance and drama, without succumbing to mawkishness resorting to melodrama.

Certainly the Princeton Regional Ballet's immediate future seems assured, judging from the fact that its present Junior Company (composed of girls from 10 to 13— is obviously full of vital and attractive young dancers just waiting to jump (both literally anw figuratively) at the chance to join their older comrades. Dorothy Pettit, who danced an altogether charming solo passage in "Songs Along the River," is indicative of this "farm system," whose talents will sustain the senior group n future seasons.

W. Windsor Was There First.

To the Editor of Town Topics:

As residents of West Windsor Township, we were interested in Princeton Township resident Mr. Tibbals' comments concerning sending districts to the Borough high school. (Town Topics, March 11). West Windsor has been a sending district since 1902 and Princeton Township since 1904. During this period, each has paid tuition on an equal basis.

West Windsor seems to have been attacked in the area where its case is strongest, financial capability. The real reason for lower West Windsor taxes are lower population, industrial ratables and fewer municipal services.

West Windsor has not only paid its way as a sending district equally with Montgomery Township, Princeton Township and Hopewell Borough, but because of its present and future industrial tax base, its inclusion in a regional district could be as good for Princeton as for West Windsor.

If West Windsor has a dilemma, it is because it can make no decision until Princeton Township has decided whether or not it will build its own high school. Should Princeton Borough and Township consolidate their school system, regionalization to include West Windsor will then require an affirmative vote of residents of all three communities. If that time comes, we hope that the voters will base their decision upon a reasoned appraisal of the facts.

ANNE V. GALLAGHER

University Is Chastised.

To the Editor of Town Topics:

In the interests of our town's amenities, I should like to propose that the Borough consider an ordinance, perhaps on the admirable Philadelphia model, forbidding property-owners to demolish any building a century old without Borough authorization, granted after a really careful study of how such a building might be preserved instead.

The object would be, I need hardly say, to prevent the University's tearing down, for reasons often so flimsy that it refuses to divulge them, things like Reunion Hall and the Steadman house before it, and only Heaven and Mr. Mestres's bureaucracy know what next.

To save Reunion, for example, an alumnus architect, Mr. Steese, long ago proposed the straightforward device of putting a steel frame inside and hanging new floors from that. This would, inter alia, save a great deal of expense for a University which, though now rolling in money, must still, for public-relations reasons, continue to whine about poverty.

But when the plan was again suggested to Mr. Goheen, whoever writes his letters for him replied that a nameless and unspecific "study" had come up within "a number of distinctly unfavorable factors," and that the University could not spend money to "preserve historical curiosities." Preserving historical curiosities is of course precisely the principle function a university fulfills; it is a kind of lumber-room of the human spirit; but Mr. Goheen may not actually read what they give him to sign.

To try to get past this weasling nonsense, however, I wrote asking Mr. Goheen whether Mr. Steese's proposal had in fact been considered, and whether the "study" was open to public scrutiny. Mr. Goheen's letter-writer left the first question unanswered, and as to the second, snapped that the University did not make public any study on which decisions were based. Obviously, the reasons for demolishing Reunion must be so flimsy that a mere layman could refute them: deep in the Parkinson Law Building, some faceless "expert" decided the place must go, and the "study" was tailored to fit the decision.

Sir, if we had confidence in this administration or its architects, the rigors of forcing such a building code upon a private owner might be avoided. But look at the University's record: The plans for the Engineering Building were too big for the lot, and had to be redrawn. Wilcox Hall was refused a building permit: it was so incompetently designed that its foundation gave way before it was half finished.

The destruction of the Steadman house was announced under such circumstances that there was no time to move it and save it. Even the University's appearances before planning boards are famous for the routine plot specifications that some "expert" hasn't met.

In fact, so many local alumni have become so exasperated with the unremitting ineptnesses of our alma mater that University public relations has had to invent a Princeton Club of Princeton to shush complaints and give out the impression that we are all one great happy and universally approving family.

Very well; if they are serious, I invite them to hire an outside firm to "study" Reunion Hall. I hereby offer $100 toward the fee for such a study.

READY, GARDENERS?

New Center to Open. "Ambleside Gardens," a new garden center, will open about April 15 on Route 206 north of the Belle Mead railroad station, under the ownership and operation of Mr. and Mrs. Townsend Scudder Jr. of Neshanic.

On its one and one-half acres, "Ambleside" will carry a wide selection of flowering trees, shrubs, evergreens, shade trees, annuals and perennials and will, in addition, offer a complete landscape design and planting service.

A special feature will be a group of model gardens — a rock garden, a Japanese pool garden and a patio, among others — planned to show a customer just how plants will look in a given environment.

The Scudders plan to arrange specimen-size trees, 12 to 15 feet tall, for landscaping and display, and to have beds of annuals and perennials changed according to blooming periods.

A modern building has been designed for the center by Arnold Horn, Neshanic architect, and built for the Scudders by The Building Center, Princeton Junction.

Mr. Scudder, a Yale graduate with a master's degree in Business Administration from New York University, has specialized for many years in the growing of rare plants on his 50-acre Neshanic farm. Mrs. Scudder, who has won many garden club awards for her arrangements, is past president of the Hopewell Valley Garden Club.

TO BUILD GAS STATION

Garden Market to Move. A Colonial-style gas station will be built by the Atlantic Refining Company on the corner of Alexander Road and Faculty Road, where there is a 125-foot Alexander Road frontage.

Atlantic is purchasing the land from William Dorman, Province Line Road. Because the property is in a service zone, no variance is needed except one for the gross area of signs. Atlantic would like a larger sign than the service zone allows.

The Township zoning Board will hear the request for a variance on Thursday night at 8 in Township Hall.

The plot is occupied at present by the Obal Garden Market, Inc., owned by John and Walter Obal, and formerly known as the Rosedale Garden Market. The Obals are building a modern structure "one minute away" on Lower Alexander in West Windsor Township.

In this new location they will have 3½ acres of land about five times what they now have. In addition, they will be able to provide off-street parking for customers.

PHASE COMPLETED

In First National Renovation. The First National Bank of Princeton has transferred its records and equipment from the bank's temporary service quarters, thus completing the second phase of its renovation.

The customer service area has been in the back of the bank, accessible through an entrance on Witherspoon Street. The bank's main entrance has now been relocated in the center of the building, replacing the two separate entries.

When the final stage of the reconstruction is completed, there will be an inside "walk-up" window at the right side of the entry way. The window may be reached from the public lobby, permitting customers to use the services after normal banking hours.

The bank has also enlarged the customer service area on the main floor, providing seven open tellers' counters on the left and 11 on the right.

The safe deposit section, formerly on the main banking floor, has been relocated on the lower level of the new rear building. When alterations are completed, the main floor will include a modernized officers' area and conference room. Ralph H. Mather, president of First National, expects that the job will be completed within "a few weeks."

A graduate of the Lawrenceville School and Princeton University, Mr. Hillier wrote a master's thesis on the design of an oceanographic center for Woods Hole, Mass. The thesis was one of 10 to be chosen by the American Institute of Architects for display at its national headquarters in Washington.

Mr. Hillier is the son of Dr. and Mrs. James Hillier of 8 Autumn Hill Road.

MODEL JET ON DISPLAY

At American Express. A six-foot model of the world's first commerical supersonic jetliner is currently on display in the window of the American Express Company at 10 Nassau Street.

The jet, the Air France's Concorde, is expected to be ready for use by 1969 and will be able to fly at speeds of 1,450 miles per hour. A trip from New York to Paris will last 2 hours, 45 minutes.

The model now on display in Princeton (see advertisement, page 6) is being exhibited throughout the Eastern United States. A prototype of the jet is expected to make its first flight in the summer of 1966 and production will begin two years later.

The public relations department for Air France figures that an average passenger could dine througout the course of the New York to Paris flight excluding the take-off and landing. One could fly 125 miles while having a bowl of soup, the department said, or go twice that distance while smoking an after dinner cigarette.

NEW OFFICE OPENED

By Applied Data Research. Applied Data Research of Route 206 has opened a Washington, D. C. facility. It is located on Fort Myer Drive in Arlington, Va.

The firm also announced that James H. McLeod has been named to head the new office. Mr. McLeod has worked with Radio Corporation of America at its data processing division in Cherry Hill. As manager of ADR's Washington facility, Mr. McLeod will supervise the operations of its technical staff members engaged in the development of software systems under contract to the U. S. Army and U. S. Navy.

TO BUILD IN LAWRENCE

The land, known as "Longacres," is behind the Lawrence Township Hall off Route 206 midway between Princeton and Trenton. The price range will be $40-$50,000 for award-winning authentic Colonial homes designed by Herman H. York. Prospective buyers may also submit their own plans.

Mr. Pilshaw and Mr. Kraft built the 74 homes at Princeton Ridge, Rocky Hill. Their offices are at the end of West Church Road, Lawrenceville.

Israel doesn't say "too old!"

Another country might say to him, "too old." Israel doesn't. It says, "come!"

Israel's doors stand wide open to every Jew in need of haven – old or young, sick or well, skilled or penniless.

In the last four years alone, Israel's people said "come" to 250,000. With your help through the United Jewish Appeal – they did come. Now tens of thousands more need Israel – and you.

They need your help to get there, and to get on their feet, once they are there.

The old, the ill, those who suffered the worst that war and Hitler could inflict on them – need your help most of all.

Yes, Israel's people will still keep the doors open. But only you can keep the newcomers passing through those doors – now, while thousands still can come.

Give a generously increased gift. Today!

In Posthumous Praise

To the Editor of Town Topics:

Alumnae of Miss Fine's School, and in particular, former students of Mrs. Mabel Wade, deceased Head of the French Department, share fully in the bereavement of the school community on the occasion of her recent death. Mrs. Ruth Cherniss's letter to Town Topics of March 11 enumerates the fine qualities which Mrs. Wade contributed to the language teaching profession, and for which she also received statewide recognition as an outstanding secondary school teacher.

We who were her students were endowed by her with a mastery of French grammar, an ability to speak the language and an abiding appreciation of French literature and culture. Her love of teaching, warm friendship, integrity, and genuine interest in her students as they moved on from Miss Fine's into academic, or other fields of endeavor, are personal attributes which endeared her to us. We who benefited from her talents are grateful and privileged to have been her students.

An Amusing Headline.

To the Editor of Town Topics:

A recent presumably serious news story (TOWN TOPICS, March 4) brought to my attention, had a comical aspect which requires, I believe, a comment on the waters which have gone over the dam.

My reference is to the "News" story headline "LENHART WINS" which apparently was the result of a release or other information supplied you by public relations man R. L. Lenhart. It concerned a court action brought by Mr. Lenhart against the West Mercer Democratic Club, asserting the club had libeled him during a political campaign in 1963. The story stated that Lenhart had "won a six-cent out of court settlement."

The question is, "Who won what?"

Mr. Lenhart's suit was based upon certain comments made by the West Mercer Democratic Club. The comments were based upon certain figures contained in a flyer prepared and circulated by Mr. Lenhart relative to his home, then for sale, and upon the tax rate and assessment ratio in Hopewell Township.

Mr Lenhart's complaint stated he had been "injured in his good name, frame and credit, and brought into public disgrace and infamy amongst his neighbors and in his community." He further asserted, "loss of pecuniary profit from the operation of his business," and he demanded both "compensatory" and "punitive" damages.

The club, through its attorney, served interrogatories demanding, among other things, proof of loss of profit by Mr. Lenhart, whereupon he withdrew his demand for compensatory damages. Thereafter, through his attorney, Mr. Lenhart placed a value of six cents on the rest of his case and offered to settle for that amount if the club would consent to a judgement against it. This, we refused to do.

Why did the Club refuse the offer? Because we did not, and do not, feel that Mr. Lenhart would have been successful if the case had been tried before a judge and jury.

Later, both parties, through their respective attorney's, agreed that Mr. Lenhart's complaint should be dismissed. The consideration for the agreement was six cents.

So, who won what?

In a sense, Mr. Lenhart won something; he was not put to the extra expense of paying his lawyer for one or two days work in court. The West Mercer Democratic Club won for the same reason. A busy judge, with a backlog of cases, 12% greater than last year, won time to try other, important cases before him.

The jurors won, because their time was not expended. Mercer County taxpayers won because their money was not spent on a one or a two-day trial.

Practically speaking, I suppose it can be said that everybody won. Important is the fact that the West Mercer Democratic Club was not found by the court to have been libelous, nor did it admit to being libelous.

Now, in the light of the above, don't you agree that the headline "LENHART WINS" is comical?

TOM COX,
President
West Mercer
Democratic Club
Titusville, N. J.

Editor's Note: Nothing is comical about the headline. What Mr. Lenhart won by the out-of-court settlement is satisfaction, as symbolized by the token payment of six cents — a normal procedure in cases where libel is charged and punitive — as opposed to compensatory — damages are sought

Why pay less than $10 for a canvas shoe?

Frankly, the Sperry Top-Sider canvas oxford is the most expensive you can buy. But it's worth every penny. The famous, exclusive anti-slip safety sole has made it the only shoe for men and women who know boats. (Great tennis favorite, too.) And the rest of the shoe makes it perfect for all casual wear: The non-chafe loose lining, that relaxes your foot. The double-deep heel cushion. The tailored looks. So why pay less, when you could wear fashion's famous Sperry Top-Sider canvas oxford for $9.95?

COMMENTS ON CRIME RISE: One reason for the increase in crime in the United States can be traced to a shortage of policemen and a resultant inadequate protection of the public, according to Emil Testa, Princeton barber. (Staff Photo)

Question of the Week

Question: What do you feel is one reason behind the major increase in crime in this country?

Where asked: Nassau Street.

Emil Testa, Trenton, barber for University Barber Shop, 70 Nassau: I think that the blame for the increase in crime can be laid, partially, at the feet of the police themselves. They haven't provided enough protection for the public. Today a person is almost afraid to walk across the streets at night for fear he will be mugged or attacked from behind. I feel this lack of protection encourages hoodlums to do more than they would otherwise. Once police forces in all our major cities are brought up to full strength i think there will be a drop in crime.

Clarence Coleman, Trenton, truck driver for Building Center, Princeton Junction: I think that its the parents' fault. They're slackening off. They're not like they were when we were growing up. Seems parents were much more strict then than they are now.

Mrs. John Jackson, River Road, housewife: I think, mainly, it's increased because of the rise in the traffic and consumption of pep pills and drugs. I think this should be curbed and from what I've read, I understand President Johnson is going to take a stand on it.

Roland S. Nelson, 222 Shady Brook Lane, marketing executive, pharmeceutical firm: I would say while the general wealth of the nation has increased, the degree of poverty has also increased. And when poverty-stricken people see abundant wealth around then thecontrast is even greater. They become more disgusted with their lot and crime is one of the ways they can strike out. Secondly, I believe parental responsibility has been greatly dimished.

John C. Warren, Trenton, short-order cook, Renwick's: I feel the judges have been a little too lenient with criminals, especially in certain crimes. Of course the criminals are aware of this. I think if someone commits a crime, he should be punished and not let off. If the judges were stricter, I believe there would be a lot less crime than there is today. There would be less of these muggings and attacks on women. I read the other day where eight guys raped some girl in a subway station.

James McCallum, student at Westminster Choir College: The decay of the home structure and a lack of religious training. Parents today leave children to their own devices.

Mrs. Mary Ann Chamberlain, 42 Park Place, housewife: I feel it goes back to the home. A lack of confidence on the parent's part to discipline their children properly, right from the start. I've seen too many children push their parents around. It's hard to believe. Little ones even. Ones six years old!

Douglas Ensminger, 1915 Hall, University junior: Seems to me that most of the increase has been in the city so I would attribute it to: one, a general lack of cultural facilities and activities in the city—situations where there is nothing to do so they go to the streets; two, the overcrowded condition of the cities themselves and three, failure of the police to keep pace with a growing population. They are using 1900 procedures for a 1965 population.

Mrs. Eve Clingman, 12 Riverside Drive, housewife: I think, personally, the reason for crime is that underprivileged people get into trouble. They have nothing else to do. It's mostly in the big cities with all the horror of slums—no jobs, broken homes, nothing to do. And the slums seem to keep getting bigger all the time. I think this program to retrain people will be a big help, but I don't think it will be enough.

Mark Swaab, 16 Chariton Street, engineer. I'd say it is due to a combination of things. The effect of the war in breaking up the family structure, and today with many mothers and fathers both working the family no longer is a central unit and this tends to disrupt a household; the population explosion-statisticaly, the amount of crime would have to go up; and I would imagine the increased display of violence in our entertainment media, not just the increase but the increase in opportunity to see it. Before, we just had radio and the movies; now we have TV as well. The kids see all this violence and they want to go out and try it themselves. It looks easy on TV.

Emilio Trombetta, Trenton, construction worker: I think its because kids are running loose at night in the streets. They don't get enough supervision at home. I think the only thing to do is to have a curfew which would make everyone under 18 get off the street by 11.

all within easy reach. Some of Urken's tools have been designed especially with women in mind: lighter, but just as efficient, and shorter in the handle. We certainly had never heard of a "ladies hoe" before, but here it is.

Potting soil will welcome those tomato seeds, or do you prefer vermiculite for rooting? Small bags of dehydrated cow or sheep manure will help things grow, and for the real lazy-bones, there are punch-and-grow asters, tomatoes, petunias and marigolds. For 59c, all you do is punch a few holes and douse with water from time to time.

We like Urken's herb department. Ever grow borage? We're going to try chervil and summer savory. This is an all-purpose store, as you undoubtedly know. While we were examining an electric hedge-clipper, a man came in and announced his presence by saying "I need some aluminum wire." Got it, too.

TO DRESS A PRINCESS....

Just Take Some Madras. Quilted Madras is what they like at Princess Shop, in the junior department we found a quilted princess with no sleeves and little collar, its princess cut offering slimness for all. A quilted Madras skirt is done in big figure eights against the greys and blues. No skirt hand on this one.

Biggest thing in Madras is a Bermuda skirt—19 inches long, just like Bermuda shorts, instead of the standard 23-inch length. Probably wouldn't be allowed in school, but on Saturdays....!

Madras gets tucked in a shirt with tucked yoke, pan collar, and long sleeves, and it gets brief treatment in a round-necked nothing of a shirt, also with long sleeves.

Clay and navy—we've left Madras now—combine in an exciting new ensemble. A sheer navy batiste shirt, long sleeved, tucks into a clay skirt and pairs with a clay ribbed pullover, sleeveless and edged narrowly with the navy. And then! There's a real, real, real sailor blouse in clay edged with navy and festooned with a white white cord and a real whistle. It goes with a pair of tight pants that break at the calf for real bell-bottoms. Well!

Pre-teens will wear their Madras with one of those big zippers, a big collar and long sleeves. (Or, a ruffle around the bottom. We like that one)

A very grown-up pre-teen suit has a navy A-line skirt, white shell and tattersall cardigan with the tatters going diagonally. And for casual wear, when the new math has been left behind at school, Princess shows a slit skirt in navy denim pink seersuckers shorts underneath and a pink seersucker shirt. Play ball!

Little sister, to keep the paint off her best Madras, is wearing a pinny with "Peanuts" cartoon characters all over it. Keep the finger paint away from Snoopy, now.

For warm spring Sundays, here's a light-weight denim coat in palest blue worn over a blue and white striped dress, sleeveless and collarless, with gussets of solid blue marked with white lacing. Another suit is orlon double knit (Washer AND dryer, they swear) with pleated skirt, shell and embroidered flowers on the cardigan.

Red navy and yellow posies bloom furiously against white pique, fenced in by yellow rickrack. Absurb little cap sleeves and a triangular scarf to hold down the pigtails.

ALL THE WAY IN NCAA?

Tigers May Just Do It. The pressure will be tremendous, and the odds are naturally against any one team defeating Michigan and UCLA on successive nights, but it is still entirely possible that Princeton late Saturday night may rank as the national champion in basketball.

Off the astonishing performances the Tigers gave in running North Carolina State into the ground and simply toying with fourth-ranked Providence —which had just finished demonstrating its superiority over third-ranked St. Joseph's— nothing that may happen in the NCAA finals in Portland, Ore., this weekend will rank with the unbelievable. The 66-48 rout of N. C. State, a somewhat haughty Atlantic Coast champion which had looked forward to its game with the Ivy Leaguers in somewhat patronizing fashion, and the 109-69 demolition of favored Providence put Princeton right on a par with the co-favorites for the NCAA title, Michigan and UCLA.

The re-match with Michigan is, of course, the goal that Captain Bill Bradley and his teammates had set for themselves after losing to the Big Ten champions in the Madison Square Garden Holiday Festival. Ahead by 12 points when Bradley fouled out with about 4:30 to go, they lost by two (80 to 78) and have waited and worked for two months to prove that they really are the better team.

Amazingly enough, it was Michigan which almost failed to make it to the rendezvous. The Wolverines trailed Vanderbilt with seven minutes left in their regional final Saturday at Lexington, Ky., and needed a blazing 11-point finish by All-American Cazzie Russell to pull them out, 87 to 85.

Michigan ended the regular season as the number one team in the nation, compiling a fine 21-3 record. The Big Ten titleholders have Russell, good balance, height and better-than-average bench strength. If they lose to Princeton, it will be because Bradley is considerably better than Russell and because the Tigers are better defensively.

Whether Coach Bill Van Breda Kolff's team will have the stamina left to defeat UCLA on Saturday, should it top Michigan in the first game, is another matter. Contests on successive nights throughout the Ivy League season have been good training, but UCLA inevitably will have greater depth than Princeton, which went all the way last weekend with six players until the games no longer hung in the balance. Wichita, the fourth team in this weekend's national finals, does not appear to have the ability to handle UCLA in their meeting Friday.

TRIUMPHS ONE-SIDED

Tigers Had Won by Half-Time. If Princeton had gone to College Park, Md., last weekend and beaten North Carolina State and Providence by hair-raising margins of one to four points, the achievement would have been a considerable upset. State had ousted Duke, ranked in the first ten, in its conference playoffs; Providence went through most of the winter as the only unbeaten team in the nation and took a near-fantasic 25-1 record into its contest with the Tigers Saturday.

Princeton led N. C. State at the half, 27-16, and Providence, 47-34, and while leads of 11 and 13 points are not necessarily safe, the dominance the Tigers had shown in the first 20 minutes of each game proved conclusively that they would maintain the upper hand. As amazing as their 109-point output (for a new University scoring record) was against Providence, the 16 points to which they held State Friday matched it.

The Atlantic Coast champions had averaged better than 80 points a game in their previous 24 contests this season. They had hit on 48% of their shots, but the Tigers pared them to 27% and a 16-point total that is reminiscent of basketball three decades ago.

Trailing briefly at the outset, Princeton caught the Wolfpack at 10-all and then moved steadily into its 11-point half-time lead. The losers held the gap to approximately that margin for a while after the intermission, but Princeton rebounding and defense widened the lead thereafter, and van Breda Kolff had many of his reserves in the game with better than five minutes left. Their use paid off handsomely: two hours later, Providence battled through a rugged overtime period before it beat St. Joseph's, and Princeton was obviously better geared for 40 minutes of basketball the following night.

Providence Never Leads. A pair of ties in the very early going at 13 and 15-all was as close as Providence ever came to catching Princeton. In contrast to North Carolina State, the Friars then began to undergo their rout early in the final half, Princeton leading by better than 30 points with ten minutes still to go.

Time and again, Princeton rebounding cleared both boards: if the Tigers missed, they got another shot; if Providence missed, the ball went the other way. Final statistics for the four games showed conclusively that the best rebounding and top defensive play were credited to Princeton.

Bradley, needless to say, was voted the tournament's most valuable player and was the unanimous choice for the all-tournament team—one writer even going so far as to name him to all five places. The Tiger captain was joined by 6-9 center Robby Brown, who barely edged out Ed Hummer. The honorary quintet was rounded out by Cliff Anderson of St. Josephs, Jim Walker of Providence and Larry Lakins of N. C. State.

Lakins, incidentally, produced scoring totals which were wholly indicative of whether he was playing Princeton, or some other team: against the Tigers, he made 7; against St. Joseph's the next night, 33.

Why the Tigers Won. Unfortunately for the sportswriting fraternity, the third of three factors that have been widely credited with Princeton's overwhelming success does not begin with "B." In rolling to their convincing victories, the Tigers had Bradley, balance and defense, the alteration bogging down but not the effectiveness of the all-around play.

St. Joseph's Coach Jack Ramsay said Bradley's game against Providence (14 out of 20 field goal attempts, 13 for 13 at the foul line for 41 points, 10 rebounds, 9 assists and superb defensive play) was the greatest game of basketball he has ever seen an individual play. Against N. C. State, the Tiger captain had 27 points and 14 rebounds. On both nights, he received the standing ovation which long ago became a tradition when he walks off the court.

But if Bradley hit a peak last weekend, so did his teammates — particularly sophomores Robby Brown and Ed Hummer, whose work under the boards meant so much in the twin triumphs. Both showed to great advantage against Providence; Hummer, in fact, was perfection itself, making all four of his field goal attempts and going 5 for 5 from the foul line.

Bob Haarlow joined Bradley and Hummer in double figures both nights with 10 and 18. Don Rodenbach had only 14 points but a 70% floor average in the two games, while the other starter, sophomore Gary Walters, was again a standout in his role of playmaker and in his ability to dribble past a tight three-quarter press.

Alumni of the squad, which is coached by Dick Vaughan with the assistance of Lester Tibbals, have captained several prep school varsities and have made notable contributions to many college teams, principally Princeton but also others in the east.

At least five PCD graduates —George Young, Peter Erdman, Austin Sullivan, Fred Roberts and Harry Rulon-Miller—have been captains at the University. The school has used Baker Rink since 1930, with the exception of 1944-46, when the facility was not in use.

ETS WIN PLAYOFF

Industrial League Champs. Educational Testing Service is the new basketball champion in the Princeton YMCA Research and Industrial League. In a playoff game last week, ETS defeated the defending champions, American Cyanamid, 68 to 57. Both teams had finished with identical 12-2 records.

Clarence Gilbert and Paul Harmon were the heroes for ETS, Gilbert scoring 21 points and Harmon, 20. Charles Corbett was high for the losers with 18.

This week a Shaughnessy play-off will be held at the Princeton High School gym. ETS will meet third-place Western Electric, and Cyanamid will oppose fourth-place Princeton Hospital. The winners and losers will then play each other to determine the final play-off standings.

In a postponed regular season game held last week at the Seminary gymnasium, Opinion Research trounced Western Electric, 85 to 43. John Fitzpatrick and Ray Cranston each tallied 24 points for ORC. Vince Graziano netted 20 for Electric.

Sports In Princeton

week enabled the Princeton High School girls' basketball team to end its season with a perfect 10-0 record. Co-captain Mary Ann Cook was top scorer for PHS with 11 points. She was followed by Val Hackenberg, 7, and Michael and Johnny Hill, each 6.

Final figures for the season reveal that the Little Tigers ran up an even 400 points for a 40-point game average, while limiting their opponents to 184 points or an 18.4 mark. Three were closely bunched for individual scoring honors. Mary Ann Cook finished with 96 points; Michael Hill, 94, and Val Hackenberg, 93. Next in line was Johnnie Hill with 41.

The junior varsity, although not quite as heroic, turned a previous 2-7 record into a fine 7-3 log. One of its three defeats was a 12-7 setback by Ewing in its final game.

High scorers among the junior varsity players were Liz Hoffman, 40 points; Anne Bretnall, 31; Mary Beidler and Verna Groo, captain, each 23, and Sue Hartley, 22. In all, the team scored 183 points to 149 for the opposition.

FOUR DIVERS PLACE

In Central Atlantic Test. Four members of the Princeton YMCA Flying Fish Club placed in the Central Atlantic Area YMCA diving championships held last week. Boys from Y's in New Jersey, Delaware, Maryland and the District of Columbia participated.

David Bush placed third in the 13-14 age level and Steve Cuthbert finished third in the 10 and under bracket. Chuck Hector finished fifth in the 10 and under class, while David D'Atri finished sixth in the 11-12 event.

Members of the Princeton swim team continued to qualify in the Northern Sectional Championships held last week in Princeton. The Princeton Y was host to the girls 8 and under, 11-12 and 15 through 17-year.

In the 8 and under class, Dede Henneman placed first in the 100-yard individual medley and third in the 25-yard freestyle. Karen Ryan was first in the 25-yard breaststroke and second in the 100-yard medley. Susan Buhler captured fourth place in the 25-yard backstroke. The 100-yard freestyle relay team of Bunny Riechlen, Susan, Karen and Dede finished second.

In the 11-12 competition, Jill Agadjanian came in first in the 100-yard freestyle. Debbie Ryan won first place and Pamela Sorg, fourth in the 50-yard breaststroke. Jane Fremon took second place honors in the 50-yard butterfly event. Jill, Jane, Debbie and Judy Wheeler finished second in the 200-yard freestyle relay and fourth in the 200-yard medley relay.

In the 15-17 class placing second were Heidi Hoffman in the 200-yard freestyle and Gail Blattenberger in the 50-yard freestyle. The 200-yard medley relay team of Heidi, Gail, Jean McClelland and Marilyn Pine also finished second.

The top six qualifiers of the Northern and Southern areas will meet April 3 in the YMCA Central Atlantic Area Championships at the Somerset Valley YMCA pool.

THE UNVANQUISHED. The girls' varsity basketball team at Princeton High has just finished an undefeated season, capping its string of victories with 39-17 score over Ewing Township. Here, just after the Ewing game, are (left to right) Valerie Hackenberg, Mary Ann Cook, Katie Kennedy and Brenda Peterson. Mary Ann was co-captain with Kathy De Remmer, who was absent from the game and picture because of illness. (Staff Photo)

WINNERS NAMED

At Dog Training School. The Princeton Dog Training Club has awarded prizes to owners whose dogs participated in the school's winter classes.

A poodle owned by Mrs. M. Norris won first prize in the beginners' class; second place went to a mixed breed belonging to Lisa Lawrence; third to Mrs. S. Gomberg's airdale; and fourth to a labrador owned by Mrs. Robert Jahn.

In the intermediate class, Harry Holvick's German shepherd took first; Mrs. Gunther Meyer's toy poodle, second; Fred Sperling's Dalmation, third; and W. J. Butcher's miniature schnauser, fourth.

BOWLING NOTES

Tie in Nassau League. The Reformers moved into a tie for the lead in the Nassau League with Bear Brook. Each team has 36 points and is only four in front of the Elks Nassau Liquor and Nassau Delicatessen, all deadlocked for third.

Hal Frazee won individual honors by the barest of margins. He rolled a 225 game, one pin more than Fred Lehnert and two more than both Rudy Schutz and Val Fowler. Other high scorers were Otto Olsen, 215 and 206; Ed Hughes, 214; Ed Lemore, 210; Dick Fowler, 298; Gib Ireland, 203; and Brice Rittenhouse, 202.

In the Three-Man Classic League, Papp's Pro Shop maintained a 3½ point lead, picking up a point on the Princeton Recreation Center, 46-12½. Turney Motors stayed in third with a total of 39½ points.

Bud Cavanaugh bowled games of 186, 209 and 234 for a series total of 629. He was followed by Jack Lucey, 217; Phil Wesp, 209; Joe Trani and Joe Baldino, 206 apiece; and Bill Kiefer and Ed Duncan, each with 201.

Dutch Neck, with 34 points, held a two-point margin for the lead in the Tri-County Firemen's League. Mercer Number Three was in the second spot, four ahead of Kingston and Lawrenceville.

Harry Kahny, 214, had the top single game and Ken Luck had games of 204 and 200. Other standouts were Art Parr, 211; Jack Zinsmeister, Bip Davison, Len Luck, all with 202; Jack Petrone and George Kirby, 201; Stan Tatum and Norm Luck, each 200.

The Sharks maintained first place in the YMCA Blue Angels League by two points over the Wildcats. The Tigers, with 10 points, remained in third place, two ahead of Triple "C." Tom Wood bowled a 236 game followed by Ken Grob, 169; Craig Donaldson, 158; and Hal Rhubart, 156.

ELECTRIC LIVING GUIDE

All rights reserved, C. V. Dickinson & Co., Inc., New York

LIKENS ELECTRIC HEAT TO "HI-FI"

Electric heat is "the hi-fi equivalent in the home heating field," according to a featured speaker at a builders' meeting.

"Electric heat gives a precision of comfort," he explains that makes previous types of heating seem downright crude. Once you become attuned to selecting just the temperature you want, anything less is jarring."

There is a big difference, however, in "the tune-in." "Thank goodness, though, that getting the heat just right is as easy as one two; flip the switch, adjust the thermostat dial and that's it. When it comes to the hi-fi, the music variety, that is, I make pretty complicated work of getting everything all clear."

He further notes that just as the hi-fi addict assembles top grade equipment, so should an electric heat user "provide a sound, well insulated construction to get maximum usage from electrical heat which in itself is, unlike any other fuel, 100% useable."

— Individual Thermostats —

...."It can't be said too often," he stresses, "the thermostat in every room that's possible with electric heat brings each room to the desirable temperature at a given time. Babies playing on the floor. You can make it properly warm for them. Dad working at his basement lathe? He probably wants the temperature at 65; and with electric heat he gets what he wants.

"A family suddenly finds it's living in a well-orchestrated house. Everything comfort-wise is in harmony."

— Equipment Explained —

There is a variety of unit types available for electrical heating. The most popular in this area are still electric baseboards, radiant ceiling cable and wall panels.

All give satisfaction, sometimes one will be given the preference for a given house style. Or, sometimes one, two, or even all three types will be used in a single house. The choice is usually best left to the discretion of the electrical contractor.

An added plus with the electrical heating units is "though they do an incomparable heating job, the units themselves are never more than just warm to the touch of the hand."

QUESTION BOX

Q. When planning on electric baseboards must they border the entire room?

A. Most likely not unless there is some unusual design factor about the room itself. Baseboard units can be assembled and placed in an infinite number of ways, fitting into corners, recessed under windows, etc., etc.

UP-DATE... ANTIQUE HEATING NOW!

This elegant relic reminds us of bygone days. Be elegant, better your days ahead with total electric home heating.

Q. Is electrical heat more expensive?

A. Prices have dropped so rapidly that it is now competitive. Experts in the field state that electric heat can prove cheaper in the long run — —as well as most modern — because life expectancy of the equipment is much greater than any other type and because maintenance cost run anywhere from minimal to nil.

Q. Is there a size difference in the fans recommended in an electrically heated house?

A. Kitchen fans should provide a minimum of fifteen changes per hour and bathroom fans a minimum of twelve changes per hour.

Q. Why is mechanical ventilation necessary in an electrically heated home?

A. Construction standards for houses with complete electric heating systems specify "tightness" to assure maximum comfort during climate extremes. Obviously this also lowers operating costs for heating . . . and incidentally also for air conditioning if it is used in the summer. The mechanical ventilation, therefore is the "balancer" which counteracts humidity build-up.

Q. We have been discussing our new house but do not really understand what the builder means by "R" in relation to insulation.

A. Since there are many types of insulation, some set in, some poured in, some suitable for one location and not another, the old custom of designating in inches has been deemed not exact enough. The National Mineral Wool Association has researched and determined what what the desirable insulation should be and indicates this measurement as "R" which stands for installed resistance.

Q. How can electric heat operate without a furnace?

A. Because the electricity goes right to the room heating unit. With this "most modern fuel" there is no need for pipes or ducts.

In Order To Serve You Better

Now, for the second year, we are providing you — our customers — with a detailed service for tax deductible drugs. This free tax record service is TIP — Tax Information Plan.

Here is how TIP works. Each time you make a purchase at The Thorne Pharmacy any part of that purchase which is deductible under Federal law is noted in a separate column on your receipt.

Receipts will be itemized on your TIP statement. You will see a gray column listing all your tax deductible purchases, and a running total of deductibility to date in the lower right hand corner. Enclosed with your TIP statement will be the individual receipts. It is vital that you keep these receipts with your other tax records. They are your legal proof that the purchases were made.

In January, 1966, you will receive a TIP final statement showing every deductible purchase you made during 1965.

Not only does TIP help at income tax time, but it is equally important should you ever have a claim under a medical insurance program.

Won't you let us serve you better by taking advantage of our Tax Information Plan?
